Abstract

An image processing apparatus for storing image data in a memory, reading image data stored in a memory, and generating print data, and is provided with a size designating means for designating an image size, and a memory control means for storing in memory the image data compressed by a compression method corresponding to a specified image size.

5